Baby-Friendly Birth Facility

We’re designated as a Baby-Friendly birth facility by Baby-Friendly USA. Baby-Friendly USA, Inc is the U.S. authority for the implementation of the Baby-Friendly Hospital Initiative (“BFHI”), a global program sponsored by the World Health Organization (WHO) and the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF). The initiative encourages and recognizes hospitals and birthing centers that offer an optimal level of care to support each birth parent’s feeding choice.
Postpartum Care

Birth parents and babies are made for each other. We recognize this fact and want to support you as you get to know your new baby. We’re happy that you have chosen to have your baby here with us.

• We now offer all private rooms with big windows and a sleeper chair for one support person to stay the night.

• We recommend 24 hour rooming-in with the nurse taking care of you and your baby together.

• The more time you spend with your baby, the better you’ll understand your baby’s behaviors. You’ll learn when your baby wants to interact with you, when your baby wants to be fed and when your baby wants to sleep. Take advantage of this time to learn your baby’s signals.

• Breastfeeding supports bonding with your baby in many ways. One is a release of hormones when you breastfeed that can create a feeling of protectiveness around your newborn. These hormones help you feel better rested and able to cope with the demands on your time and energy that come with a new baby.

• Your baby will know you! Your baby will recognize your voice, your smell and your heartbeat. A crying baby is calmed quickly just by being placed close to its mother. Placing your baby skin-to-skin next to your heart is calming for both baby and you.

• Watch your baby, not the clock. Babies don’t follow the clock, and the timing of their feedings and naps will vary. This is normal. In time, you’ll find a routine that works for you and your baby, but schedules aren’t helpful right now.

• It’s okay to put the needs of you and your baby first. Your need for rest and your baby’s need to eat are the most important activities. This is the time for you to learn how to care for yourself and your baby before you go home.

• Don’t worry that you are holding or comforting your baby too much. Your baby is used to being held very close and wants to be with you. Responding quickly to your baby’s cries in the early days assures your baby that his/her needs will be met and will actually decrease the amount of crying in the future.

• Our care team is here to care for you and your baby. Please don’t hesitate to tell us what you need. We want to support your new family during this time of transition.

Encourage your friends and family to wait until you’re home to visit. Too many visitors can stress new birth parents, support persons and babies. This is the time for the new family to get to know each other. Your nurse will be happy to help you with visitor control.

Note: Under certain circumstances, the hospital may restrict or limit visitation privileges to ensure the health and safety of patients, staff and visitors.
